
You're Invited: Tips on Acing the Video Interview & Land a Job

You are invited to join the ONLINE conversation on Tuesday, April 20th, 2021 from 10:00AM to Noon. George Schonewolf, President of Career Directions, will help you prepare for your video interview.

Looking for a job? Practice smiling because it is likely you'll be on camera. A survey by staffing companies found that more than 6 out of 10 employers use video interviews "somewhat" or "very often" and only a quarter of companies said they did not use video interviews at all.

The novel coronavirus has changed just about everything we do- making remote conversations the new normal whether for school or work. What about landing that next job? Video interviews are becoming the norm in the hiring process.

Many employers throughout the country are turning to webcam interviews to help speed up and streamline the interview process. Many choose free services like Google Hangouts, Microsoft Team, ZOOM etc., to contact potential hires, while others contract with professional video interviewing services like Async Interview and Hire-Vue to vet candidates. Whatever video service the hiring company uses, the fact remains... in the increasingly digital workplace, a webcam interview and your ability to sell yourself well on camera – may make or break your job search.

With the arrival of COVID-19, the world quickly is shifting from in-person meetings to video conferencing and video interviews. Given that today most of corporate America are working remotely from home, this has sped up a process, which had begun prior to the current health crisis. So, being that you are amid a job search, it is more important than ever to be fully prepared to ace your next video interview.

Attend this presentation and you will learn:

- How to dress to impress.
- How to master the digital handshake.
- How to test your tech.
- Why practice is key.
- How to use your face to show that you are engaged.
- Do's & don'ts of a video interview.

Final Note: Many companies are using video interviews at early stages in recruitment and for jobs throughout the company. There is no question that the hiring process has become more technologically advanced and with the appearance of COVID-19, it has changed temporarily and possibly permanently the way employers handle the hiring process. Prepare to wow your interviewer and land the job!
